Dortmund/Kherwara. The new expansion of the New Apostolic school in Kherwara, India, was officially opened during a festive ceremony at the beginning of March and is now in operation. District Apostle Armin Brinkmann travelled to India for this special occasion. The New Apostolic Church of North Rhine-Westphalia coordinates the pastoral care and administrative activities of the Church in this northern region of India.

The New Apostolic school in Kherwara has existed since 1993 and includes a nursery school, primary school, and intermediate school. As a result of the new expansion the school is now able to offer instruction up to the tenth grade. The project was made possible through the support of many brethren in North Rhine-Westphalia who contributed generously to the cause at numerous charity events.
