Zurich. A meeting with Cardinal Kurt Koch, president of the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity, was on the agenda of the New Apostolic Work Group “Contacts with other Denominations and Religions” as they visited Rome. The discussion partners discussed matters of mutual interest for a good hour. The New Apostolic Church is thereby continuing its dialogue with the Catholic Church.

Once the Catechism of the New Apostolic Church has been published, the discussion partners plan to meet up again. Back in 2008 the group had already met with Cardinal Walter Casper, then the Vatican’s designated contact person for ecumenical matters.

Since Radio Vatican expressed interest in an interview, Apostle Volker Kühnle, chairman of the Work Group “Contacts with other Denominations and Religions” answered questions on behalf of the New Apostolic Church (see Newsletter Radio Vatican). In the interview he mentioned, among other things, how important it is for all Christians to spread the gospel of Jesus Christ around the world.
