

Zurich. Thousands of members all over the world and a pleased nacworld team are closely following the launch of the new version of nacworld. At midnight, weeks of preparations will culminate with the introduction of new features, an improved navigation, and a simplified registration process. nacworld will extend access to all age groups, thereby enabling New Apostolic Christians worldwide to communicate more easily.

For the new version, privacy features have been overhauled. Compared to commercial competitors, nacworld is non-commercial, does not display advertising, is non-profit, and does not share user data with third parties. It remains a Christian platform, with a focus on encouraging communication and exchange among its members.

One important privacy feature is that each member can determine which personal data can be seen by other members. These preferences can be set up on one easy-to-use page, and can be modified anytime. With the removal of age restrictions, the service becomes available to children, young adults, middle-aged adults, and seniors from all over the world.
