Zurich. On his website “ad fontes” Folkmar Schiek has publicly called upon the Work Group “History of the New Apostolic Church” (WG HNAC) to provide source references in the article “Perfecting the Ordinances—Historical Observations on the Ministry of Evangelist in the Catholic Apostolic Church” (OF 8/2007). The History Work Group responded to this with an Announcement of a supplementary article.

At the time, the History Work Group mentioned that an academic article on the Evangelist ministry had been scheduled for release. The latter was partially based on newly available internal sources of the Catholic Apostolic Church in England.

We are now pleased to make this article available. Please read our preface to the article first.

We further read that he fulfils this commission by “healing the sick, casting out devils, raising the dead and when, by preaching of the word, confirmed by the signs and miracles which God should work by him, he has drawn the hearts of the heathen to be joined to the Church, reaching them by baptism into the Church”. The example of Philip (Acts 8), we read, shows that “having accomplished this, his office is subject, and straightway he proceeds on his mission of preaching the Gospel in other places”.

The statement that the evangelist is to baptize might lead us to think of him as a missionary to heathen nations. As it was, the apostles of the Catholic Apostolic Church restricted their address to Christian nations. They hoped to rebuild the Christian Church on its original foundations and lead it to perfection. After their separation on 16 July 1835, Apostle Carls had expressly addressed them as “apostles for the heathen through the length and breadth of Immanuel’s land”.
